Mr. Fichter has served as President and Executive Director at Evansville Right to Life and then moved on to serve on the state level as President and CEO of Indiana Right to Life. Fichter has served in the Right to Life for thirty years and is well respected for his ability to get things done and for his pro-life conviction to the unborn. The banquet is set for Thursday, October 6, at 6:30 p.m. at the Simon J. Graber Building off the Odon/Cannelburg Road. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 for students/children. RACE FOR THE WHITE HOUSE

Pro-Life Pence Picked as Trump’s Running Mate By Louis Kavanaugh Jr.

I know many pro-life people are very nervous about the fall election and how it will shape up for the pro-life movement. Indiana has been turned upside down as pro-life governor Mike Pence has been selected as Donald Trump’s running mate. This is expected to help Trump as it will help to stabilize the Republican ticket for president and help to calm pro-life voters who are nervous about Trump’s vocal statements on just about every issue. With Pence on the ticket, it may help to encourage voters to vote for the Republican presidential ticket when they otherwise may stay home. There have been some voters across the country who were nervous with Donald Trump at the top of the ticket, but when you look at Hilary Clinton at the top of the Democratic ticket there is no other choice in this election. When you consider what she could do with appointments to the government agencies and also appointments to federal courts and the U.S. Supreme Court it would be a disaster for the unborn and the pro-life movement across the country. Now with the selection of pro-life Mike Pence on the ticket it could be that pro-life groups will endorse the Republican ticket for president.

Another factor in Trump’s favor that has helped to calm fears in the pro-life community is Trump’s choice of eleven judges to the courts that he has put forth if continued on PAGE 6

Governor Pence was selected to be Trump’s running mate for president and it is expected to help the ticket in this tight election. Pence is very pro-life and has led the State of Indiana as its governor since 2013. He also served in the U.S. House of Representatives and had a 100% pro-life voting record.

Democrat John Gregg No Friend of the Right to Life

On the democratic side, John Gregg has picked his running mate and she is Cristiana Hale, a pro-abortion state representative from the Indianapolis area house district 87. It is no surprise that Greg picked a pro-abortion running mate as the Democratic Party is now known as the party for abortion. She has received campaign contributions from Planned Parenthood, Indiana's largest abortion industry. John Gregg, while serving as speaker of the Indiana House, did not help with pro-life bills and in fact worked to have the bills killed. While saying he was pro-life, he assigned pro-life bills to committees where he knew the chairmen of those committees were pro-abortion and those bills would not see the light of day. While meeting with pro-life leaders, he said he was pro-life but was not going to dictate to his committee chairman. Does that sound pro-life, knowing the bills would be killed? While Evan Bayh served as governor of Indiana, it was evident that a pact was made with Speaker Gregg not to bring up pro-life bills so Democrats would not have a recorded vote that they might have to answer for in future elections. Now pro-abortion Evan Bayh has decided to come back and run for U.S. Senate in Indiana when polls were showing that Democrat Baron Hill was having trouble against Republican Todd Young.

With the exit of Governor Mike Pence from the governor's race on the Republican ticket, the republicans have picked Eric Holcomb, who was selected as lieutenant governor under Pence and also worked for Congressman John Hostettler, who was very pro-life. Holcomb is expected to carry the pro-life banner in this campaign against pro-abortion candidates John Gregg and Cristiana Hale. Eric Holcomb has just selected Suzanne Crouch, who has been endorsed by Indiana Right to Life P.A.C. in her bid for several state offices that she has held. She is currently serving as State Auditor. Holcomb and Crouch will have an uphill battle against the pro-abortion team of Gregg and Hale, but anything can happen before this election is over.

A Pro-Life Woman Vowed to Never Vote for Donald Trump, Now She Has Changed Her Mind Emily Derois, Washington, DC

The Columbus Dispatch published an article by columnist Christine M. Flowers this week explaining why she is "holding her nose" and voting for Donald Trump. Flowers has written several columns explaining her disdain for the Republican presidential candidate. Yet despite this blatant disregard, the columnist says she will vote for him in November.

Flowers explains that she cannot put Democratic candidate Hillary Clinton in the position of winning the presidency simply because of her disdain for Trump: "The reason that I am turning myself into a hypocrite of the highest order at an epidermal level, is to keep myself from becoming a hypocrite at the deepest level of consciousness. I cannot put Hillary Clinton in a position to shape the Supreme Court."

Flowers wants a Supreme Court that will defend unborn children and uphold basic safety regulations in abortion mills. If Clinton becomes president, she has promised to appoint pro-abortion justices as she continues her fight for extreme abortion laws. This was evident in Clinton's statement regarding the recent Supreme Court ruling that overturned Texas abortion clinic regulations: "We need a president who will defend women's health and rights and appoint Supreme Court justices who recognize Roe v. Wade as settled law. We must continue to protect access to safe and legal abortion – not just on paper, but in reality." This is why many pro-life leaders are supporting Trump. On June 21, Trump met with a group of pro-life leaders and told them he would choose justices who are pro-life. Although his past statements regarding abortion have been varied, he is undoubtedly the candidate who will defend the most unborn lives.

As Flowers says, "...Ruth Bader Ginsburg was clinging to her gavel until a liberal could replace her, and the other four feminists (including Breyer and Kennedy) were in good health. Currently, the only thing standing between Clinton and the court is Trump."

Race for U.S. Senate in Indiana, Pro-Life Todd Young against Pro-Abortion Evan Bayh

In Indiana, the race for U.S. Senate has also taken a turn that has not happened before in Indiana politics. Pro-abortion candidate Baron Hill was unopposed in the Democratic primary and was having trouble getting his campaign going and was trailing to pro-life Todd Young in the polls, so in steps Evan Bayh to save the day. Baron Hill withdraws from the race and Evan Bayh will now run in his place. Many in the pro-life movement know full well the pro-abortion voting record of Evan Bayh while serving as governor of Indiana and serving as U.S. senator. He was the deciding vote in the U.S. Senate that forced Obamacare – with its abortion funding – on the general public. On the other hand, Todd Young, who is presently serving as congressman from the ninth district in the U.S. House, has a 100% pro-life voting record. There is no doubt that Bayh will bring out the Democrat faithful to vote for the candidate, but we will see if Indiana is ready to return the pro-abortion Bayh to the U.S. Senate.

Hilary Clinton Names Pro-Abortion Kaine as VP Pick, Says He's "Catholic" Who "Supports Abortion" from LifeNews

Abortion activist Hillary Clinton today tapped pro-abortion Virginia Senator Tim Kaine as her vice-presidential running mate. The Virginia politician is on record as trying to have it both ways, saying he is both a "traditional Catholic" and a strong supporter of abortion. Kaine has a pro-abortion record. As LifeNews previously reported, Kaine said he is a "strong supporter of Roe v. Wade" despite being a "traditional Catholic."

"Like Hillary Clinton, Senator Tim Kaine supports the current policy of abortion on demand," said Carol Tobias, president of National Right to Life. "Like Hillary Clinton, Sen. Kaine is so extreme on abortion he opposes even the Pain-Capable Unborn Child Protection Act, legislation to protect unborn children from abortion after 20 weeks, when they are capable of feeling excruciating pain during dismemberment or other late abortion methods." As a U.S. senator, Kaine has voted against the pro-life position every chance he got. Sen. Kaine voted to allow government funding of abortion providers, and he voted against legislation to require an abortionist to notify at least one parent before performing an abortion on a minor girl from another state.

Kaine identifies as Roman Catholic and claimed that his beliefs align with the pro-life Church. But he was pro-abortion enough for Democrats for Life to yank its endorsement of him. His spokesman and website are now identifying him as a pro-choice Democrat. Kaine avoided directly giving his stance on abortion, in order to appear more conservative. However, his refusal to defend life in his political career tells the voters that Kaine supports abortion.

On Sunday, Democratic vice presidential candidate Tim Kaine was given a standing ovation by his Catholic parish, California Catholic Daily reported. While his fellow parishioners are celebrating him as Hillary Clinton's pro-abortion running mate, many Catholics are speaking out against him because of his position on abortion. The Rev. Thomas Petri, a Catholic priest in Washington, D.C., tweeted the Senator to stay out of his communion line: "Senator @timkaine: Do us both a favor. Don't show up in my communion line. I take Canon 915 seriously. It'd be embarrassing for you & for me." Providence Bishop Thomas J. Tobin also spoke out on how Kaine's political position on abortion is in direct contradiction to the teachings of the Catholic Church. "Senator Kaine has said, 'My faith is central to everything I do,' but apparently, and unfortunately, his faith isn't central to his public, political life," Tobin said.

Can Hillary Clinton Be Worse on Abortion Than Obama? Yes, and Here's Why!

By Dave Andrusko, Editor of National Right to Life News

Surely it is understandable if a pro-lifer might come to the conclusion that, in effect, if you've seen one pro-abortion President, you've seen them all. They could be forgiven if they asked themselves, could Hillary Clinton possibly be any different –any worse–than her husband, former President Bill Clinton, or the current pro-abortion occupant, Barack Obama? After all both Bill Clinton and Barack Obama are pro-abortion to the core.

But unless you understand the progression, the degeneration–of leading Democrats' position on abortion and how she represents the nexus for the intersection of the International Abortion Industry, you can't fully appreciate how devastating a President Hillary Clinton would be. Bill Clinton didn't accidentally come by the moniker, "Slick Willie." A deft politician, he hid the practical abortion-on-demand implications in the mantra of abortion as "safe, legal, and rare."

Obama slid down the slope even before he became President. As an Illinois state Senator he opposed the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act, legislation to provide legal protection for babies who are born alive during abortions. We remember his comment at a town hall meeting in Johnstown, Pennsylvania. If either of his daughters were someday to "make a mistake," he said, "I don't want them punished with a baby."

And there was his glib "it's beyond my pay grade" answer to Rick Warren's question, "at what point does a baby get human rights?" His record as President has been an unmitigated disaster, much too long to detail. Suffice it to say that he threatened to veto a bill to prevent sex selection abortion, is attempting to strangle laws that protect freedom of conscience, engineered ObamaCare which resulted in federal funding of over 1,000 health plans that pay for elective abortion, and threatened to veto a bill that would protect pain-capable unborn babies from abortion.

Can Hillary Clinton be worse? Oh, yes. Let me count just some of the ways. Clinton likes to talk about herself as a "grandmother." But because of the policies she has supported–and would vigorously advance as President Hillary Clinton–there are far fewer grandmothers, and mothers, Proud "feminist" that she is, Clinton is not shy about her unabashed, four-square support for abortion on demand, at home and abroad.

Before itemizing just a portion of her many extremist positions, remember that Clinton is a founding mother of the Sisterhood of Death. Planned Parenthood loves her, EMILY's List adores her, NARAL thinks she is a secular saint. Collectively they will spend multiple tens of millions of dollars to elect "one of theirs" to the White House.

In the administration of a President Hillary Clinton, PPFA et al. won't just have access. You can bet a slew of its key leaders will not only advise on policy but also be in appointed positions where they can make policy.

Half of her appointments (at least) will be women. Can you imagine any woman making the cut if she didn't pass the pro-abortion litmus test? As a U.S. Senator, Clinton had a 100% voting record against the babies. While some others of her kind balked at partial-birth abortions, not Clinton. Clinton voted repeatedly to keep partial-birth abortion legal.

It gave her no pause that an abortionist could deliver a baby's entire body, except for the head, jams scissors into the baby's skull and opens the scissors to enlarge the hole, and suck the baby's brains out. What about more recently?

In April, Chuck Todd, on Meet the Press, asked Clinton: "When, or if, does an unborn child have constitutional rights?" She answered, "Well, under our laws currently, that is not something that exists. The unborn person doesn't have constitutional rights." Somehow or the other, Paula Faris (of The View) was able to ask a follow up question two days later. "And Secretary, I want to ask you about some comments that you made over the weekend on Meet the Press regarding abortion. You said, quote, 'the unborn person doesn't have constitutional rights.' My question is at what point does someone have constitutional rights, and are you saying that a child, on its due date, just hours before delivery still has no constitutional rights? Clinton responded, "Under our law, that is the case, Paula. I support Roe v Wade."

A major goal of a President Hillary Clinton would be to secure an international "right" to abortion. She is wired into the Abortion Establishment, both domestically and internationally. She is resolute that there can never, ever be a limitation on abortion, including your right not to pay for them and (if you are medical personnel) not to participate in abortion. It is no exaggeration to say a President Hillary Clinton would be catastrophic.

Something to think about:
If you don't vote for Donald Trump or Hillary Clinton for president, you could be helping Hillary Clinton to win the presidency. Many experts are saying this could happen. Think about it!

Democratic Party Platform is Even More Pro-Abortion Than Ever Before, Here's How

By Dave Andrusko National RTL

The Democratic National Committee released the latest draft of its 2016 platform recently, a week after Senator Bernie Sanders (Vt.) promised to fight “on the floor of the convention” if more progressive planks did not make it in. David Weigel, in the Washington Post, tells his readers reporters previously only had a summary of the platform and a leak on which to base stories about the party’s platform. “After multiple requests from the media, and at least one leak, the party is effectively giving the public one week to peruse the language before the full platform committee meets in Orlando.”

So what is the party’s position on abortion? Only a tiny portion of the section is included. Instead Weigel talks about how, for “the first time, the 2016 Democratic platform says that the party will attempt to repeal the Hyde Amendment.” We will continue to oppose — and seek to overturn — federal and state laws and policies that impede a woman’s access to abortion, including by repealing the Hyde Amendment ... we support the repeal of harmful restrictions that obstruct women’s access to health care information and services, including the “global gag rule” and the Helms Amendment that bars U.S. assistance to provide safe, legal abortion throughout the developing world. Translated out of AbortionSpeak and into English, what is the party going after?

The Hyde Amendment is a provision attached to the annual appropriations bill that covers many federal health programs (including Medicaid). More federal funding means more – lots more – dead babies. The most conservative estimates are that at least a million people (not to count their descendants) are alive today because of the Hyde Amendment. Testifying before a congressional committee in 2011, NRLC Federal Legislative Director Douglas Johnson said NRLC “believes that the Hyde Amendment has proven itself to be the greatest domestic abortion-reduction law ever enacted by Congress.” The public overwhelmingly supports not allowing federal funding of abortion. Getting rid of the Hyde Amendment is a major priority for Hillary Clinton, the pro-abortion presumptive Democratic nominee for president. The Helms Amendment is a law that prohibits the use of certain types of foreign aid funds for abortion “as a method of family planning.” Weigel says there are other portions of the platform that Clinton would not agree with. She agrees 100% with the platform on abortion.

Just a word about the remainder of the section on “Reproductive Health, Rights, and Justice.” Here are the first three sentences, which are indicative: “Democrats are committed to protecting and advancing reproductive health, rights, and justice. We believe unequivocally that every woman should have access to quality reproductive health care services, including safe and legal abortion— regardless of where she lives, how much money she makes, or how she is insured. We believe that reproductive health is core to women’s, men’s, and young people’s health and wellbeing.”

Hillary Clinton Considering Keeping Abortion Activist Loretta Lynch as Attorney General

Micaiah Bilger, Washington, DC

On the issue of abortion, President Barack Obama and Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton are quite similar. New reports indicate that, if elected, Clinton could keep some of Obama’s top pro-abortion administration officials on staff. One is U.S. Attorney General Loretta Lynch, The New York Times reports.

Lynch is pro-abortion and has defended gruesome partial-birth abortions in the past. Under her leadership, the Justice Department also has been accused of unfairly targeting pro-lifers by pursuing “frivolous prosecutions” against the pro-life movement. Here is more from The Daily Caller:

Picking Lynch as a holdover from the Obama administration would help Clinton’s stated goal of making her cabinet gender-equal. But the choice would likely prove controversial given that Lynch is the ultimate arbiter in the Justice Department’s investigation into the potential mishandling of classified information on Clinton’s private email server. Concerns over conflicts of interest reached new heights last week after Lynch, the first black female AG, met in secret with Bill Clinton at Phoenix’s international airport.

During an interview on The View recently, Clinton said an unborn child just hours before delivery should have no Constitutional rights. Her comments came just days after Clinton said unborn children simply do not have any Constitutional rights, which would include the right to life. At a presidential forum at Drake University, Clinton called ending the life of another human being a “fundamental human right.” In May, she also slammed a new Indiana law that protects unborn babies with Down syndrome from discriminatory abortions.

Indiana University Sues to Block Abortion Law so They Can Continue to Receive Aborted Babies!

By Louis Kavanaugh Jr.

Yes, that is true! Indiana University has entered the abortion debate by suing so that they can continue to receive aborted babies to experiment on. We have known for a long time that universities across the country have become a bastion of liberal ideas contrary to the pro-family lifestyles.

According to Mike Fichter, President of Indiana Right to Life, "We are gravely disappointed at Indiana University's attempt to block the Dignity of the Unborn Law in order to continue using aborted babies in its experiments. There are multiple alternative tissue sources for such research that do not require the harvesting of organs and tissue from babies that have been electively dismembered. IU's admittance to using aborted babies for their research also raises concerns about whether pregnant women gave permission for this research."

Dr. David Prentice, Vice President of Research Director for the Charlotte Lozier Institute, stated: "There is no real proof offered that aborted fetal tissue is unique or essential or a sole source to the research. Moreover, fetal tissue obtained from miscarriage is still allowed for research under the new Indiana law." In the complaint it was brought out that IU acquires and receives aborted babies from the University of Washington.

This has brought up the question: Do you want your children going to IU in the wake of this announcement? And if you support IU with money or donations for any reason, should you continue to do so? This is something that people who are pro-life need to consider.

Pro-Life Bill HB 1337 Passed by Indiana Legislature Struck Down by Obama-Appointed Judge

A pro-life bill that was passed and signed by Indiana Governor Mike Pence has now been struck down by a federal judge appointed by President Obama. Governor Pence signed this legislation into law in spite of the negative press from the pro-abortion media and the abortion industry. An Indiana bill to protect unborn babies from being aborted simply because of a disability, race or sex was sent to Governor Mike Pence's desk in early March. The Indiana House gave final approval to House Bill 1337 on a 60-40 vote, sending it to the pro-life governor's desk. The state senate passed the bill in February.

Indiana House Bill 1337 would ban abortion doctors from knowingly aborting an unborn baby solely because of a genetic disability such as Down syndrome, the unborn baby's race or sex. The bill also has several other abortion-related measures, including a requirement that aborted or miscarried babies' bodies be cremated or buried and another requirement that abortionists who have hospital admitting privileges renew them annually.

The burial/cremation requirement backs up a law passed in 2015 by Governor Pence requiring that aborted babies' bodies be disposed of in a humane way. In 2013, North Dakota became the first state to pass a similar bill to protect unborn babies from abortions because of disabilities. A handful of states also ban abortions based solely on the baby's sex.

We Remember the Passing of Rosemary Wichman

We call your attention to the passing of Rosemary Wichman who passed away suddenly on June 13 of 2016. Rosemary was married to Bob Wichman who passed away on July 15 of 2015. Bob and Rosemary have been strong supporters of Right to Life both financial and volunteering their time to help where they could. Bob and his wife Rosemary also worked for the St. Vincent DePaul Society and were charter members. They will always be remembered for their kind hearts and for their compassion for their fellow human beings. A Memorial Page to honor them will appear in our Right to Life Banquet Book.

"Right To Life will always remember Bob and Rosemary. God bless them."

Pro-Life Pence Picked as Trump's Running Mate

he were to be elected president. Many pro-life leaders and conservative leaders have all expressed their approval of the individuals that Donald Trump has said he would appoint to the high court if he were to be elected. They all have good conservative and pro-life records. Trump has been behind Clinton in the polls, but has received a boost in the polls after the Republican convention; and with Clinton's email scandals, it may have hurt Clinton more in the long run.

There were many individuals saying all along that Clinton would get off with a slap on the wrist because President Obama's key people were investigating the scandals and they would see to it that nothing was done to her. It is yet to be seen how the voters will react to it, but polls just being released are showing it is hurting her. She has picked Tom Kaine as a running mate; but in spite of the fact he says he does not believe in abortion, he is perfectly willing to let abortion be the law of the land. In fact it is hard to find any democrat who is willing to stand up and say they are pro-life and try to do something about it. The pro-abortion mentality seems to be the norm in the Democratic Party.

Monuments to the Unborn Babies Killed by Abortion in Our Area

Monument at St. Mary's Church, Shoals

Pray that the World Will Protect Life from Conception to Natural Death

This is another Monument which is right beside the entrance to St. Mary's Catholic Church in Shoals in Martin County. We comment the Catholic Community of Martin County for their remembrance of the Unborn Children and their Respect of Life. It is a public display of their faith. We need more like it.

Monument at St. John's Church, Loogootee

In Loving Memory of the Unborn Victims of Abortion

This tombstone sits on the lawn of St. John's Catholic Church in Loogootee and has been in place for several years. On Easter Sunday, Martin County Right to Life Members place an Easter Basket there in remembrance of those children that will not celebration Easter because they were aborted. We comment St. John's Church for placing the Stone there and for MCRTL for their observance of victims of abortion.
