Over 450 Attend 2026 Right to Life Banquet

By Louis Kavanaugh Jr.

Pictured above is Lucas Miles as he speaks at the Right to Life Banquet on Thursday Oct. 1 at the Simon J. Graber Building. Lucas Miles who was the main Speaker for the evening is a Board Member of Turning Point USA and was a close friend of Charlie Kirk who was killed in September of 2025.

Indiana Right to Life President & CEO Mike Fichter was also present for the Banquet and gave an update on what is happening on the state level. He stated Indiana has some of the strictest laws on abortion but worries about the abortion pills coming into the state. Fichter is concerned about the young mothers crossing the state border into Illinois to have an abortion where that state have some very liberal laws on abortion.

Large Crowd Attends the Annual Right to Life 2026 Banquet By Tim Pinkham

America's pastors have a moral obligation to speak out to their churches about the evil of abortion. That message was delivered Oct. 1 by Lucas Miles, the guest speaker for the 50th annual Right to Life banquet. An ordained minister and author, Miles serves as lead pastor of Nfluence Church in Granger. He is also senior director of Turning Point USA Faith. America is now a post-Christian nation, where human life is devalued, said Miles. Through TPUSA Faith, he is working with 12,000 pastors across the country to teach the full counsel of God. "It is morally wrong to take the place of God to decide who lives or dies," Miles said. He made the startling point that one-third of potential Gen Z persons have never been born, due to abortion.

Miles was a friend of TPUSA founder Charlie Kirk, who was assassinated on Sept. 10, 2025, while speaking with students at Utah Valley University. Turning Point speakers are still receiving tremendous hostility at many colleges, Miles said.

Pastors who support abortion, euthanasia and homosexuality, instead of biblical morality, are "wolves in sheep's clothing leading (their churches) astray," Miles said. He described some churches and pastors as "enemies of the Gospel."

Miles said some Christians remain in churches which no longer preach the Gospel because they have a history with the church or family members have always attended there. He said those Christians need to find another church to attend.

"We want a nation under God," Miles said. "We need to see the church stand strong. Pastors are called to be ambassadors of truth." Miles said statistics show only 49 percent of Christians have voted in recent elections. He compared this to Jesus' parable about the talents. He compared non-voting Christians to the servant who buried the talent he was given rather than gaining more talents through work or investment. That servant was condemned by Jesus.

"Every human being bears the image of God," Miles said. "Human life therefore should be protected."

Alexander Family Selected as 2026 Adoptive Family at Right to Life Banquet

On Thursday evening at the Right to Life Banquet the family of Seth and Lauren Alexander were honored as the Adoptive Family for 2026. Pictured here is the Seth and Lauren Alexander Family as they pose for a family picture. In this picture in front is (L-R) Ty, Tabbi, Elijah and Burke and in back are the parents, Seth and Lauren Alexander.

While being honored, Lauren Alexander said it was such a blessing to receive this honor as she and her husband could not envision life without the children they have adopted. It has been such a blessing; and she spoke of how she started many years ago coming to the Right to Life Banquets and this has instilled in her and her husband a strong value of life for the born and unborn. She said she cannot imagine going through life without the blessings of these children and encouraged everyone to support the Right to Life and the Foster Parent Program.

During the program while accepting the award, Lauren Alexander explained how the adoption took place and was grateful for the honor but most of all she was grateful for being able to adopt the children that she and her husband now call their family. Each year the Daviess-Pike and Martin County Right to Life organizations honor an Adoptive Family which goes along with their slogan "Adoption Not Abortion."

Pro-Life Award Winners at Right to Life Banquet

Mary Bassler (L) and Sharon Herring (R)

Phyllis Daily

The pro-life award winners this year were Mary Jean Bassler, Sharon Herring and Phyllis Daily. All three of these ladies passed away after serving many years on the Daviess County Right to Life board and worked in various positions to help promote the Right to Life movement here in Daviess County.

Accepting the awards on behalf of Mary Jean Bassler were her daughters Jennifer Lowe and Lori Milnor; accepting the Award on Behalf of Sharon Herring were her daughters Maria Sergesketter, Christine Taylor, and Susan Ndoye; and accepting the award on behalf of Phyllis Daily were her sisters Chris Sipes, Bonnie Jones, and Mary Daily.

Also present for the presentation of the award for Mary Jean Bassler and Sharon Herring was Marilyn Davis, sister to Mary Jean and Sharon as Marilyn is the only living sibling left in the Murphy family. Jeanie Murphy, a sister-in-law, was also present for the presentation.

While presenting the award Louis Kavanaugh Jr. stated that these three ladies did everything asked of them by helping put on the Banquet, selling tickets, selling ads and doing everything to help the Right to Life organization in Daviess County. Mr. Kavanaugh said his only regret was not being able to present this to Mary Jean, Sharon and Phyllis when they were still with us, but he was sure they were smiling down on us tonight.

Each year the local Right to Life organization honors individuals who have promoted the Pro-Life movement.

Pictured here (L-R) is State Representative Bruce Borders, Louie Kavanaugh Jr. and Shane Lindauer *taken at the Right to life Banquet. Both Borders' and Lindauer's terms of office as state representatives in our area will come to an end on January 1 of 2027. ## Special "Thank You" to All Who Helped at RTL Banquet

By John Kavanaugh, President, and Louis Kavanaugh Jr. Executive Director

We want to take this opportunity to thank our RTL board members and anyone who helped to make the 2026 Banquet another huge success. Also, a special thank you to those who help to park cars, ticket sellers, those who bought sponsorships, and anyone else who helped in any way to support the Right to Life organization in this successful endeavor.

We could not do this without all your help. It takes everyone to make this a successful event, and you all have done that. Special thanks to all! The bottom line is we do these banquets to raise funds for our organization and for First Choice Solutions. We do this to promote the pro-life cause. Let us continue in this battle. God bless each and every one of you!

PLEASE REMEMBER: NO OTHER LIFE ISSUE IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN THE ISSUE OF ABORTION.
THE NUMBERS DON'T LIE!
SO PLEASE, ALWAYS VOTE PRO-LIFE!

Election Results from the Fall Elections in Key Races

By Louis Kavanaugh Jr.

Well, the 2026 Fall Election is over and it did not go well. On the local lever, pro-life candidates prevailed but on the State and National Level it was not a good night for Pro-Life candidates. Below I will give you some of the results from our State of Indiana and on the local area.

Secretary of State of Indiana,

Democrat Beau Bayh won over Max Engling for Sec. of State here in Indiana in a close race and the first time in many years that a Democrat has won a state-wide office. It has been rumored that if Bayh won, he will then run for Governor like his dad Evan did years ago. Beau Bayh said at his victory rally that he would serve out his term of office but we will see if he is true to his word. When his father Evan Bayh was Governor, he helped to promote abortion here in Indiana and that seems to go along with the Democratic agenda.

Treasurer for State of Indiana

Republican Daniel Elliott won his race for State Treasurer over Democrat Coumba Kebe.

State Comptroller (Auditor for State of Indiana)

Democrat Jessica Bailey won the race for State Auditor here in Indiana in a rare win for the Democrats in the State of Indiana.

U.S. Congress 8th District

Pro-Life Mark Messmer won re-election over Mary Allen for U.S. Congress for his second term as 8th District Congressman.

State Senate District 39

Former State Representative Jeff Ellington was unopposed in the Fall Election and will take office in January. Ellington will replace Eric Bassler who did not run for re-election.

State Senate District 48

Incumbent Pro-Life State Senator Daryl Schmitt won re-election over Bradley (Brad) Hochgesang.

State Representative District 45

Kellie Streeter was the winner over Democrat Rebecca Dawn Mayfield. This will be her first term of office as a State Representative. She will replace Bruce Borders who was defeated in the Spring Primary.

State Representative District 63

Amy Kippenbrock was the winner over Democrat Tiffanie Arthur. This will be Amy's first election as State Representative. She will replace Shane Lindauer who did not run for re-election.

Christian Universities Have Ties to Planned Parenthood

By Louis Kavanaugh Jr.

A friend just sent me a list of colleges that are affiliated with Christian churches that have ties to Planned Parenthood, the biggest abortion provider in the Unites States. The list contains 103 universities in the U.S. with ties to PP. Of course, many of these are from liberal churches that have accepted abortions and gay lifestyles so this is not surprising. The list was put out by Students for Life, a pro-life organization that has gained popularity over the last several years.

This is so sad that Christian universities are maintaining ties to this evil organization. The list includes Notre Dame University a Catholic college here in Indiana. This is unreal to see Christian universities with the ties to this evil organization and the Christian leaders who turn a blind eye to what is going on. Some Christian leaders express their views against Planned Parenthood but it goes nowhere. Where are the other Christian leaders? May God give these leaders some backbone to speak up for the unborn.

If You Have Not Attended a Right to Life Banquet, You Need to Do So!

By Louis Kavanaugh Jr.

Each year we work to encourage people to attend this special event and show their support for the pro-life cause. By attending you give encouragement to those people who have given so much of their time and talent for the movement. There are many important things to do but please take the time for just one night a year to set aside that time to attend this special event and let your voice be raised to support those little ones who cannot defend themselves.

Remember, there are many important causes but none more important than the abortion issue. We have high profile individuals in our country that are pushing for abortion up to the time of birth, and we must not remain silent on this issue.

It has been said many times: The only thing necessary for evil to succeed is for the good people to do nothing! So let your voice be heard by attending these pro-life events. God is watching!

Democrats Take Over Congress, Will Push Abortions Up to Birth and Tax-Funded Abortion

By Steven Ertelt | Washington, DC

Democrats captured control of both the U.S. House and Senate on Tuesday, giving the party the power to advance legislation that would legalize abortion through all nine months of pregnancy nationwide and force taxpayers to fund killing babies.

In the House, the pro-abortion party needed a net gain of only a handful of seats to flip the chamber from the narrow pro-life Republican majority. Early projections indicated Democrats would secure a working majority, with final margins still being tallied in several competitive districts. In the Senate, Democrats have secured 51 seats and maybe more depending on the final count in multiple races.

Democrats had already outlined their legislative priorities in a September memo from the Cost-of-Living Healthcare Working Group addressed to pro-abortion Minority Leader Hakeem Jeffries. The document listed, for the first 100 hours of the new Congress, two abortion measures: the Women's Health Protection Act and the Equal Access to Abortion Coverage in Health Insurance Act.

That's code for abortions up to birth and using tax dollars to kill babies. Marjorie Dannenfelser, president of Susan B. Anthony Pro-Life America, described the Women's Health Protection Act as legislation that would "create federal abortion 'rights' and destroy state laws protecting the unborn." She said it "should be called the Abortion on Demand Until Birth Act."

Critics note the bill would override state limits on late-term abortions, informed-consent requirements and facility regulations, while allowing abortions after viability based on a physician's determination.

The companion measure, the Equal Access to Abortion Coverage in Health Insurance Act, would end the Hyde Amendment, the longstanding provision that bars federal funds from paying for elective abortions. Dannenfelser said the Democrats' goals, once exposed in the memo, "are BRUTAL."

"They've told us what they're going to do," Dannenfelser said. "Hakeem Jeffries, Chuck Schumer and their allies had their post-election plans exposed several weeks ago, when Politico reported on a memo outlining the politicians' goals for the first 100 days of the next Congress."

SBA Pro-Life America Communications Director Kelsey Pritchard has emphasized the stakes of the Hyde Amendment, which has been credited with saving more than 2.6 million lives since 1976.

"We are incredibly grateful for the protections Hyde has afforded to the unborn and the consciences of every American taxpayer," she said. "A baby in Massachusetts, Maryland, or New York is just as precious, just as worthy of rights and protection as a baby in any other state."

With Democrats now set to control the House, pro-life groups said the party's stated first-100-hours agenda would put federal legislation overriding state protections and taxpayer funding of abortion on the table. The Senate outcome remained unresolved Tuesday night, but a Democratic House majority would give the party a platform to advance the measures and force votes on the issue.

I Will Never Understand the Way Some People Vote!

By Louis Kavanaugh Jr.

As we complete another election cycle, I just don't understand how some people vote. There is a saying that says, "You can sing Come to Jesus on Sunday at your local church service and then on Tuesday go to the polling booth and vote for Democratic candidates who support abortion up to the time of birth." It just goes against all form of righteousness by supporting candidates who call for and support abortion up to the time of birth and thinking there is not a connection between right and wrong.

Oh, I know there are people with their heads on crooked who say there are other issues they are looking at. Can you tell me what is a more important issue than the killing of the unborn, whether at four months along or at birth? It is the killing of the unborn no matter what stage of pregnancy the mother is in.

When we look at who won some Democratic U.S. Senate seats, you have to scratch your head and wonder what some of these people were thinking when they elected these people who do not have the best interest in mind for our country. They are leftists, out to destroy our Christian way of life. So many people are taken in by these candidates who want to promise everything free so they can to win their vote. Look at what is happening in New York, Illinois, and California. We may have to reach the bottom before we dig our way out of the mess they have created. It is true you can vote your way into communism/socialism but you have to fight your way out of it.

Here in Indiana, it is not as bad as the rest of the country; but the crazy people who were elected this fall will be governing us for who knows how long! They will be making laws that will put us at risk. During the first two years of the Trump Administration the borders were closed and the country was safer because of it.

I saw a post from Mike Rowe that made sense after this disastrous election. He said: "I have a question for all those who are voting blue. Which part of the Democrat platform did you vote for? Is it guys in girls' locker rooms, the end of Israel, Sharia law, no more police or jails, supporting illegal aliens and the cartels, more fentanyl on the streets, more fraud in blue states, more dismemberment of babies in the womb, higher taxes, more gun control, doing away with the Trump account for kids, or some other reason? Or is it because you were told Trump was bad?"

So, we just don't understand how people vote!

Cardinal Ignores Catholic Pro-Life Teachings, Gives Award to Abortion Activist By Steven Ertelt | Washington, DC

The highest official in the Catholic Church in Illinois gave an award to a radical abortion activist who has literally funded the deaths of unborn babies. Meanwhile, outside the swanky fundraising dinner where the award was given, pro-life advocates protested and called the Catholic leader to follow the Catholic Church's pro-life teachings and Biblical values instead.

Cardinal Blase Cupich took part in a high-profile fundraiser for Mundelein Seminary days before Election Day that honored Michael Sacks, a major donor to abortion causes.

The opposition is based on Sacks giving over $1 million to groups that kill babies in abortions or facilitate abortions.

Illinois Right to Life has pointed to records showing approximately $1.1 million in support from Sacks for abortion-related causes since 2020, including $500,000 from the Sacks Family Foundation to Planned Parenthood of Illinois between 2020 and 2022 and a $600,000 contribution toward an initiative that benefited Planned Parenthood of Illinois and the Chicago Abortion Fund.

Sacks have also supported groups that work to elect candidates who favor abortion.

An eyewitness inside the event reported the presence of many pro-abortion Democrats including Gov. JB Pritzker, Illinois House Speaker Chris Welch, Illinois Senate President Don Harmon, former Chicago Mayors Rahm Emanuel and Richard M. Daley, former U.S. Commerce Secretary Bill Daley, Cook County Board President Toni Preckwinkle and former U.S. Education Secretary Arne Duncan. Michael Sacks acknowledged the governor and legislative leaders in his remarks, praising their work on organized labor.

Illinois Right to Life President and CEO Mary Kate Zander pointed to instructions reportedly given to Chicago priests that week. Cardinal Cupich told them that under no circumstances should they take a side in the upcoming election and directed them to the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops' voting guidance. Yet the cardinal participated in the fundraiser attended by some of Illinois' most powerful pro-abortion Democrat leaders.

Their attendance does not itself constitute a political endorsement, Zander noted, but the contrast raises a question: Why does Cardinal Cupich insist upon political neutrality from his priests while hosting an event for Mundelein Seminary filled with prominent pro-abortion politicians and donors?

In his remarks, Cardinal Cupich invoked Nostra Aetate, the Second Vatican Council's declaration on the Catholic Church's relationship with non-Christian religions. He argued that honoring individuals who disagree with Catholic teaching does not necessarily constitute an endorsement of their positions.

Cupich defended the award, saying it affirms the Church's relationship with non-Christian communities, particularly Judaism, and does not endorse Sacks' specific political or moral positions. He said refusing to honor someone solely because of conflicting views can risk patterns of exclusion. Zander said that explanation fails to address the central concern.

"Respecting a person's dignity is not the same as publicly bestowing honors upon that person, especially if it's unclear what they're being honored for," she stated. Illinois Right to Life said it can respect Michael Sacks and unequivocally reject antisemitism while still objecting to the Archdiocese of Chicago honoring someone who has been an ardent financial supporter of abortion at a very high level.

"Our history of opposing Catholic awards to pro-abortion individuals stands by itself," Zander said. "We believe abortion grossly violates the human rights of mother and child and are disappointed that Cardinal Cupich is intentionally misdirecting from the core tenet of our statement: The Catholic Church, which has always stood against abortion, should never honor anyone who has so publicly promoted the killing of innocent life. Michael Sacks' Jewish roots are completely irrelevant."

Cardinal Cupich also spoke of the Church's commitment to human dignity and the common good. Zander asked how that commitment can be reconciled with honoring someone who has contributed $1.1 million to abortion in the past six years alone. Longtime Catholic commentator and pro-life advocate Matt Abbott told LifeNews that he thinks Cupich's attitude on the award is not shared by fellow Catholic Church leaders.

"It's disappointing, but not surprising, that Cardinal Cupich once again dismissed the concerns of those who peacefully protest the evil of abortion. Thankfully we have other Catholic bishops who wouldn't give awards to politicians and wealthy donors who are pro-abortion," he said.

Pro-Life Action League executive director Eric Scheidler is also speaking out and said the objection rests solely on Sacks' funding of abortion.

"Our objection to this award is based solely on Mr. Sacks's determined funding of abortion, which the Catholic Church calls an 'unspeakable crime.' It has nothing whatsoever to do with his religious affiliation," Scheidler said. "The pro-life movement invites those of every faith to join us in defending the lives of unborn children."

Scheidler noted that in 1988, Cardinal Joseph Bernardin, together with Scheidler's late father Joe Scheidler, buried 2,033 aborted children at Queen of Heaven Cemetery in the Archdiocese of Chicago.

Cardinal Francis George later joined pro-life prayers at the site. Cupich has not accepted invitations to do the same, Scheidler said. "Cardinal Cupich always seems to have time for powerful people like Mr. Sacks," Scheidler said. "I'd like to see him take some time with the powerless, like the working-class women being pushed into abortions they don't want at the very Planned Parenthood facilities Sacks funds."

The U.S. bishops' statement "Catholics in Political Life" says Catholic institutions "should not honor those who act in defiance of our fundamental moral principles." The Catholic Church has long described abortion as an "unspeakable crime."

That Claim About Women Dying From Illegal Abortions Was a Lie

Paul Stark | Washington, DC

The image of a coat hanger has long served as a symbol of the importance of legalized_abortion. But that symbol is based on a lie.

Before the U.S. Supreme Court's Roe v. Wade decision, which legalized abortion nationwide, many advocates of legalization claimed that thousands of women died each year by undergoing dangerous abortions, sometimes performed in back alleys or using coat hangers. Today, abortion defenders warn that bans or even modest restrictions on abortion could lead to more deaths. Legal and accessible abortion, they say, ensures the health and safety of women.

Every death or injury is a tragedy we should seek to prevent. The unsafe abortion argument, however, suffers from both a justice problem and an evidence problem.

The justice problem: First, if abortion is unjust, then the dangers of choosing to participate in the injustice are not a very good reason to make it legal. No one would say, "Society should authorize the killing of children so that parents don't have to jeopardize their own safety when they decide to get rid of their children." Children are valuable human beings who have human rights. They deserve protection under the law. If human beings in utero are also valuable members of the human family, then they too deserve protection, regardless of the risks some people might assume by trying to kill them.

The back-alley argument, therefore, "fails to meet the [pro-life] claim that abortion is the deliberate killing of an innocent human being," writes Princeton ethicist Peter Singer, a defender of abortion. "The fact that restricting access to abortion has tragic side effects does not, in itself, show that the restrictions are unjustified," adds philosopher Mary Anne Warren, who also supports abortion, "since murder is wrong regardless of the consequences of prohibiting it."

The evidence problem: Second, empirical evidence shows that laws against abortion do not have the terrible consequences that the back-alley argument alleges. Dr. Bernard Nathanson, the NARAL co-founder who helped lead the effort to legalize abortion, later acknowledged that his movement's claims about the number of deaths from illegal abortion were wildly inaccurate:

I confess that I knew the figures [5,000-10,000 maternal deaths per year] were totally false, and I suppose the others did too if they stopped to think of it. But in the "morality" of our revolution, it was a useful figure, widely accepted, so why go out of our way to correct it with honest statistics? The overriding concern was to get the laws eliminated, and anything within reason that had to be done was permissible.

What do honest statistics reveal? The incidence of maternal mortality—and abortion-related mortality specifically—declined dramatically through the middle part of the 20th century due to antibiotics and other medical advances. By 1960, Dr. Mary Calderone, Planned Parenthood's medical director, concluded that "abortion, whether therapeutic or illegal, is in the main no longer dangerous." This steep drop in deaths occurred before the 1973 legalization of abortion, which had no apparent effect on mortality rates.

"[T]he data suggest," observes Joseph Dellapenna, author of the most definitive work of U.S. abortion history, "that there have been as many maternal deaths in the United States annually from legal abortions (estimates range from 15 to 35 per year) as there were maternal deaths from illegal abortions in the years immediately before Roe v. Wade was decided."

Those who offer the unsafe abortion argument frequently appeal to examples outside of the United States. They point to some countries (such as many in Africa) that prohibit abortion and suffer high maternal mortality rates and to other countries (such as most in Europe and North America) that permit abortion and boast low mortality. They infer from this correlation that laws against abortion cause a high incidence of maternal death. But that's a fallacy.

The highest-mortality nations are developing countries with poor maternal health care; the lowest-mortality nations are developed countries with advanced maternal health care. This is true irrespective of abortion policy. Some countries, for example, permit abortion and have high rates of mortality because their health care system is poor. Other countries prohibit most abortions and have very low rates of maternal death (often lower than that of the U.S.). These countries include Chile, Ireland, Poland, Malta, the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, and Lebanon.

The evidence from both the U.S. and around the world is clear. Legalized abortion is demonstrably unnecessary to have an excellent standard of women's health. We can protect both.

Of course, we should never minimize the horror of any pregnant woman's death from an abortion. Nor, however, should we ignore the deaths of one million unborn children in the U.S. each year. There's no such thing as a "safe" abortion.

We can protect the right to life of all human beings, including unborn children, and safeguard the health of women at the same time. That's what a just and compassionate society ought to do.
